

WINHELLER

Securities and Funds Litigation (Plaintiffs)

Comment: The small team at this recommended firm for securities and funds litigation handles notable instructions. Winheller lands large institutional investors with potential claims for damages worth millions. Work often has an international element due to strong international connections. The firm occasionally advises financial service providers on banking and capital markets.

Practice: Litigation for fund investors, shareholders and holders of bonds and certificates against financial service providers, esp. concerning negligent investment advice, ad hoc information and prospectus liability. Also fraud. (2 salary partners)

Clients: High-net-worth private investor against German subsidiary of a Swiss bank concerning negligent wealth management (portfolio value >€10m); various K1 Fund plaintiffs (€3m); various HRE investors in proceedings under the Capital Markets Test Case Act, various Lehman investors in actions for damages.
